OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.
FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 24, 1866.

The President has been sorely tempted to change his position and come over part way towards Congress. Unless I am badly misinformed, no less a man than Thurlow Weed has been down here within a week to talk over matters with the President and to advise him to accept the Constitutional Amendment as a finality and to press it upon the South as such.

The fact is, that Weed and Raymond are alarmed and are very sick at the stomach. The Maine election was more than they could endure at one dose, so they have been trying to get Andy Johnson to take a step onward. But Andy won't accommodate them on any account. He is obstinate as a mule, and will not admit the great change ahead.

Yet the proposition of Weed is a shrewd one. There is a clan of radicals who already begin to talk seriously of insisting upon universal, or at least impartial suffrage in the South. A majority of the Republicans as far prefer to make a test question of the Constitutional Amendment, admitting the Republicans of any State to Congress when the State adopts the Amendment, as was

The Daily Oregonian.

THURSDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 25, 1866.

The Subject of Apportionment.

The Legislature of Oregon is perhaps as remarkable for what it failed to do at the late session as it is notorious for what it did do. The whole time of the House was squandered in trifles, and needful legislation was entirely neglected. Even the not making a new apportionment of Senators and Representatives, though imperatively required by the Constitution, failed to pass. Not only the Constitution, but justice to all parts of the State, demanded a new apportionment. But members who could talk in a most impressive mannner about their duties, and profess a determination to perform them at every hazard, could very easily forget their supreme obligations under the Constitution, when the time came to act. They found it easy not only to ignore the wishes of their constituents in matters of legislation, but even to disregard the plainest requirements of our fundamental law.

The Constitution of the State, Art. IV, Sec. 6, says: "The number of Senators and Representatives shall, at the session next following an enumeration of the inhabitants by the United States or this State, be fixed by law, and apportioned among the several counties according to the number of white population in each. And the ratio of Senators and Representatives shall be determined by dividing the whole number of white population of such county or district by such respective ratios; and when a fraction shall result from such division which shall exceed one-half of such ratio, such county or district shall be entitled to a member for such fraction. And in case any county shall not have the requisite population to entitle such county to a member, then such county shall be attached to some adjoining county for senatorial or representative purposes."

A census was taken by the State in 1865, as required by the Constitution. By this enumeration the population of the State was shown to be 65,090. The late session of the Legislature, being the first held after the completion of the census, the new apportionment should have been made before its adjournment. Considerable changes would have resulted from the new distribution of Senators and Representatives. It was for this reason that the apportionment was not made. To keep up the strength of their party in the Legislature, the Copperheads preferred to let the old apportionment stand unaltered, and to have the several counties unequally represented in the next Legislature, as they have been in this.

Of course there was no remedy for unequal representation in the present Legislature; but this provision was inserted in the Constitution expressly that the inequality might be righted as often as a census was taken, and that all the counties of the State might be represented according to their population.

Laying out of consideration the Constitutional requirement in regard to this matter, a few facts will serve to show the necessity for the new apportionment. The Legislature at present consists of 22 Senators and 47 Representatives. The population of the State, as before remarked, is 65,090. With the present number of Senators, this would give one for every 2,900 inhabitants. The same number of Assemblymen as now, would make the ratio of population about 1,400 to each Representative. Now take the table of population of the several counties, make the computations for the apportionment of Senators and Representatives and mark the results. Begin with Jackson county. Its population is 2,955. This would entitle it to one Senator—just what it has now. It would also give it two Representatives, whereas it now has three. So, Jackson county has one more member than its share. Josephine county has a population of 792. This is only a little more than a quarter of 2,900, and yet Josephine now has one Senator. Baker county also elects one Senator, though its population is only 857. Umatilla and Wasco counties have respectively 1,905 and 1,898 inhabitants; and each has two Representatives, or one more than it would have under a proper apportionment. Of course as the counties named have more than their share, others have less. Marion, Linn, Multnomah, Yamhill and others, are not represented in proportion to their population. One fact in regard to this matter will be noticed. As a rule, the counties which have more strength than their share in the Legislature, are strongly Democratic, while those which have not their just proportion of representatives, are mostly Union. This was the reason why the new apportionment was not made. Had the act passed, as it should have done, the Union party would have been four or five votes stronger in the next Legislature than it is in this. But this is not a partisan question. Justice to all the counties and a regard for the Constitution, required a new apportionment. If any one charges that the Unionists wanted it for party purposes, the reply is ready that, partisanship aside, it was a measure strictly just in itself, and that the Copperheads would not allow it to come up in the House because they had party purposes to subserve by preventing its passage. They had buried it under a mass of other matter, and intended that if they could prevent it, it should not be passed upon.

The Senate passed the bill some time before the close of the session, and is in no way responsible for its failure.

The more the general action of the House during the session is considered, the more contemptible does it appear. The longer the conduct of the renegade Unionists is thought of and dwelt upon, the deeper is the indignation which it must excite, and the more general the detestation with which it must be regarded. If there men have any further political aspirations, they will do well to remember that there is a hereafter. No party was ever more foully cheated by its betrayers than the Union party of this State has been by the few men who have proven false to the trust that was reposed in them.

While Johnson was delivering his late speech at Cleveland, somebody said in his hearing that Lincoln's death was unfortunate. Could anything be more horrible than his rejoinder: "YES, UNFORTUNATE THAT GOD RULES ON HIGH AND DEALS IN JUSTICE." And this man who was elected Vice President on the popularity of Mr. Lincoln, has descended as low as the vilest of the good President's maligners, and says that his assassination was a visitation of justice from the hand of the Almighty! This is precisely what his words mean. If he did not intend to say a thing so diabolically horrible, ought he not in propriety, and in justice to himself, to keep sober enough to know what he ought to say?

MILITARY TACTICS.—It is said that during the Morgan raid in Ohio, a regiment of raw militia being drawn up before its newly elected colonel, he ordered the advance in the following Buckoye vernacular:

"Look wild thar! tote your guns; prepar to thicken and go endways! Go afukin—git!" and amidst such yells as was never before heard in those "diggins," the gallant colonel dashed off in search of the "grey-backs," followed by his impatient command.

THE SOUTHERN STATES.—United States Senator Sherman, in a late speech, declared that if the Southern States refused to accept of the Constitutional Amendment now offered them as a basis of restoration, he would be opposed to their coming in at all, unless upon the basis of universal suffrage. Senator Sherman, it will be remembered, has not been one of the intense "Radicals."

Eagle Creek Quartz District.

This district, as most are aware, is situated thirty or forty miles east of Grand Ronde Valley. Though of recent discovery, it promises soon to rank among the first in the richness of its ledges of gold and copper. Already over 300 ledges are located and of this number twelve or fourteen that have been opened, prove to be very rich. Every ledge that has been examined has been found as it decends to grow wider, and its rock to increase in richness. The ledges are said to be unusually well defined. Some of them stand twenty feet or more above the ground.

The Gem of the Mountains, as we are informed, is the best developed of any. So far as known it is the richest ledge in the district. A ton of average rock gave a yield of $114. A five stamp mill is now running on this rock. The ledge and mill are owned by the "La Grande Gold and Silver Mining Company." The mill has been in operation but a short time, and was put up at a cost to the company of about $12,000. The Gem ledge sells at twenty to twenty-five dollars per foot. Were it in Owyhee it would no doubt command several times that sum. Its richness and permanency are known to be beyond question. The company have taken out 300 tons of rock which they now have ready to crush. The ledge widens rapidly as it descends.

The Portland, S. Y. Cook, and Golden Eagle ledges rank very high. They vary in width from two to ten feet. We have not been furnished with an account of the value, per ton of the rock that has been taken from them.

This district has several advantakes over others, among which may be named cheap labor and provisions and an abundance of wood and water. There are good roads leading to it, and it is easy to access at all seasons of the year.

FROM MONTANA.

The Montana Post of the 6th inst., gives the following:

Gen. Hazen left last Saturday for Salt Lake and California, whence he goes to the Eastern States to recruit the 38th Regiment U. S. A., of which he is to be Colonel.

Gen. Green Clay Smith, of Kentucky, who has received his commission as Governor of Montana, arrived in Virginia City on the night of the 3d inst. He was cordially received. He delivered an appropriate speech in a graceful style of oratory, and obtained the thanks of his hearers, who applauded several passages. There were no allusions of a partisan character to mar (Meagher) the harmony that prevailed, and everybody was gratified. He avowed his intention to speak upon political matters at a future day, and then all can understand his views.

A letter from Fort Benton says: Through the kindness of John Curtis, who has just arrived from Fort Benton, we have the following: Indian difficulties are again looming up. Last Tuesday (September 27th) a Piegan was killed and scalped there. The next day a party of white men, eight in number, started in pursuit of a war party of eleven Indians. A portion of the whites overtook the Indians at the Teton, and killed seven, bringing in their scalps and all their accoutrements. They were still in pursuit, and at the last accounts had added another to the number. Much trouble is apprehended in that vicinity this winter.

Some Californians, who are familiarly known as the Hazlis boys, have been engaged in cutting a tunnel through the side of Bald Mountain. On the 25th ultimo, after having gone about seventy feet through gneiss, they struck a bed of gravel which appears to have been the bottom of some stream that may have flowed ages ago. One nugget, worth $38, another, valued at $11, and several of less weight, were found. Of course, the news spread like wild fire, and within a brief time claims were staked in every possible direction. There seems to be no room for doubting that the discoverers will make their fortune, which all their friends claim to be a suitable reward for their industry and honesty. Nothing can be stated regarding the extent of this bed, but it is thought that it will be at least a mile in length.

A General War in Europe Predicted.

The Marquis de Larochejaquelin has published in pamphlet form, in Paris, what would have been pronounced in the form of a speech in the French Legislature but for his ill-health. The substance of his argument is that Europe is on the verge of a general war. He says:

"There is no one in concealing the fact. France has played too great a part in recent times to have any alliances on which she can count. Modern Germany does not love us, and rivalry will be aggravated into hatred. Italy is out of the question. The manner in which the French are treated there, and the government judged and treated, does not allow of any illusion. Russia suffered too much in her wars in the Crimea and in Poland, and from the treaty of Paris, to trust to our alliance. England, having to choose between the empire of Germany and France, cannot hesitate. We are feared; all the great nations are jealous of us; and two of these great nations are crested by our arms, or with our assent. We have revived old and created fresh grievances against us, and it will be long before they are effaced. Soon, in a European conflict, we shall be alone. This is beyond dispute, and the policy we have to follow is obvious."

He adds that, if France awaits the constitution of the new German empire, she will have all Germany upon her, and continues thus: "Without fixing any precise period for the general war which is certain, and which all political persons believe in, even the most inveterate optimists concur in declaring that from this moment the duty of France, and of other great nations—their most imperative duty—is to prepare on the largest scale for the greatest events of this country, which, however, has witnessed some of the most extraordinary."

The immediate alliance of France with Austria, and with the nations now subjugated by Prussia, he thinks, may yet save all; and would, moreover, keep back those who, without that alliance, are sure to become provinces of Prussia.

RECENT MURDERS IN IDAHO.—A letter to the Owyhee Avalanche, dated Ruby Ranch, Crow Creek, October 9th, gives the following account of recent Indian murders near that place:

On the 7th instant Frank Osgood and John Dixon started up Crow creek to hunt ducks. They had proceeded about five miles, and were near Arnold's ranch, when they discovered plenty of Indian signs. Osgood said to Dixon, "Let us make for a rocky mound," that was near by "and have a look for them," when a dog that was with them gave the alarm. They then started to run back, and the Indians commenced firing on them. At the fourth shot Dixon fell, being shot through the heart. Osgood succeeded in getting to the stream, which is lined with large tules and generally deep. Here one of their boldest warriors sailed in after him, parting the tules with his bow, and when within ten feet of him Osgood shot him through the breast with five shot. The Indian died immediately. He then shifted his position, but the red devils were bent on getting him. They rode up and down the creek, yelling like demons, for some time, until another made a similar attempt to find their intended prey, and luckily for Osgood, came again within a few feet, dividing the tules as before, when Osgood sent him to his long home, after which they were more cautious and gave him a better chance to crawl down the creek. For four miles the Indians were all the time riding in perfect rage up and down the stream, on both sides. They followed in this way to within one mile of the house, and at night made several attempts to get to the house, but were repulsed. On the 8th inst., at noon, a freight train of United States wagons, with an escort of soldiers, under Wagonmaster William DeMoss, came here and camped, and we went with him and got the body. It was stripped but not mutilated, as is usually the case. We buried him near the house. Dixon was lately from California, and had been engaged here as a work hand, and, as far as we can learn, he has borne a good reputation wherever he has lived. Many friends will mourn his loss.

THE INNOCENT PASTIME OF KILLING ABOLITIONISTS.—The Dramatic Chronicle of San Francisco, famous for clever sayings, perpetrates the following:

The people who approve of the New Orleans massacre are of the opinion that killing Abolitionists has not ceased to be a rather laudable species of industry even since slavery has been abolished. But there are a number of our contemporaries who do not take this high ground, and instead of absolutely justifying and applauding the murderers, are content to apologize for them. These do not exactly say, "served 'em right, the d—d abolitionists!" They only say: "Well, it was a little too rough to kill the infernal scoundrels in that wholesale style, and we're sorry for it. But then it was quite natural. When people will talk "Union" in excitable communities, and make such "intemperate speeches," they ought to expect to get the tops of their heads blowed off."

NORTH CAROLINA.—A Government officer, who probably is better acquainted with the true state of affairs in North Carolina than any other man in the State, says:

"In North Carolina there would be thirty thousand votes for the policy of Congress, were it not for the fact that the influence and patronage of the Administration is in the hands of the rebels, and the Union men, seeing no ground of hope, except in Congress, are listless and inactive, and take no interest in the elections. It seems doubtful whether they will even make a nomination in opposition to North, although they know that any change would be to their advantage."

FROM WALLA WALLA

We clip from the Statesman of the 19th inst.:

PUBLIC SCHOOL.

The public school, in charge of Prof. Moore, is in a flourishing condition. On visiting the school room a few days since, we learned that the average attendance is 93, about equally divided between boys and girls. The names of 110 scholars appear on the roll.

SNOW.

For several days back the higher peaks of the Blue mountains have been covered with snow. Wiseacres say that this early fall of snow indicates a mild winter.

JAILOR DISMISSED.

The late grand jury, in the course of their investigations, obtained abundant evidence to show that Martin, the keeper of the jail, was implicated in the release of Donohue. One of the witnesses examined, testified that on the night of the release Martin came down stairs in his stocking feet and closed the windows of the cells adjoining that in which Donohue was confined, with the obvious intent of preventing the other prisoners from knowing what was going on. It was further in evidence that the two fierce watch-dogs, trained for the purpose of preventing escapes, were perfectly silent on the night of Donohue's release. It was also shown that Donohue had privileges and indulgences not shown to other prisoners, and that certain parties had free access to his (Donohue's) cell, at all hours day or night. The investigation went to show that the use of false keys and all that sort of thing was a mere blind, and that instead of an escape, Donohue was permitted to leave his cell when it suited his convenience. Other suspicious circumstances attached to the keeper, in view of all which it was deemed proper to demand his dismissal. Sheriff Seitel at once assented to the demand, and Cyrus Leyde, a gentleman who is well and favorably known, takes the place of the dismissed jailor.

WHITMAN'S SEMINARY.

In accordance with previous announcement, the building hereafter to be known as the Whitman Seminary was dedicated on Saturday last, with appropriate ceremonies. The building is two stories, with a cupola on top, and is possibly the most imposing structure east of the mountains. The address on the occasion was delivered by Rev. Mr. Chamberlain, and was pronounced by those in attendance a masterly effort. It included an able and conclusive argument in favor of popular education, and for over an hour held the audience in breathless attention. From a paper read by Mr. McKee, the Treasurer of the Board, we learn that the institution is indebted to the Rev. G. Eells for a donation of one-half of the Mission land claim, owned and occupied by him. The land has been amicably divided by a committee appointed by the Board of Trustees, and the one-half appropriated to the Seminary is valued at $3,000. The property is now for sale and the proceeds will be held for the benefit of the institution. The Trustees express their gratitude to the Rev. Mr. Eells for the spirit of benevolence which he has manifested, and for his zealous efforts for the ultimate accomplishment of the establishment of a respectable educational institution in the valley, to be reared and perpetuated in memory of Dr. Whitman, who sacrificed his life in the early settlement of the country. The Trustees are also indebted to D. S. Baker, Esq., for the donation of the land for the accommodation of the buildings, together with a liberal cash donation; also, to numerous citizens who have cheerfully contributed in sums from $2 50 to $250. To all these friends the Trustees express their thanks, and, doubt not that the public will be amply compensated by the benefits which the community will derive in the usefulness of the Seminary. The builders, Messrs. Dexter & Leidy, certainly deserve credit for their promptness in fulfilling their contract, and the substantial manner in which the work has been executed. From the Treasurer's report we learn that the entire cost of the building, &c., in its present condition, is $4,842 42. The whole amount of donations to present time, $2,859 50. The Trustees have borrowed $1,000, making a total of $3,849 50, and showing a deficiency to cover the present cost, of 2992 92.

An ordinance to amend an ordinance for furnishing ing amount of appropriation from $50 to $200, read first and second times and passed

Council Adjourned.

Police Court.—The decision in the case of constable Sheriff Stitzel was rendered yesterday in favor of Ball. It appears that by virtue of an execution issued from the Circuit Court in favor of E J Northrup against J. K. Perry & Co, the Sheriff proceeded to levy upon the stock in trade, among the implements used by Perry & Co, for the improvement of the streets, was a heavy iron roller which was lying upon one of the streets when Mr Stitzel levied upon by going to the place where it was and directing a man to see that it was not removed. He had seized it under the execution Afterwards the execution was issued by Justice Graden in favor of Mr. Felix Landeau, which was placed in the hands of Constable Ball for service. Mr Ball removed the roller and fastened it to a fence with a chain The Sheriff wishing to remove it, and finding that Ball had broke the chain and removed the roller, Ball to sell at the sale of the other effects of the Co. Ball then purchased the roller for $5 and refused to deliver it upon demand. Ball then brought suit before Justice Graden to recover the value of the roller Graden decided in favor of the plaintiff, ruling that Sheriff Stitzel had not removed the roller or taken possession of it, nor kept it in continuous custody, and was valid, and that as constable Ball had broken the fastenings and locked it up, his levy was legal Mr Stitzel gave notice of an appeal to the District Court

Buggy.—We were shown yesterday at the manufactory of W R Cooper & Co., the buggy which took the first premium at the late State Fair at Salem. It is a splendid piece of work and no doubt fully equal in style, finish and material to the best Eastern work. There is no good reason why work equal to that of Abbott, Downer, Brewster or Watson should be done here. It may seem presumption to say that good work is done here. Yet let those who think so examine for themselves. Their work excited the admiration of the highest amateurs and much surprise, that it was able to produce an article of so perfect finish This is the first exhibition of this manufacture in the State, at all able to compare favorably with eastern work, and we hope it is the inauguration of a trade that will save to our home circulation the large amounts of money yearly sent East for this article.

The Bars.—Though the kindness of engineer Walker we are informed that the dredger will begin operations at Swan Island bar on Friday The channel at the mouth has been well cleared out, and from soundings made by the river pilots this week, 14 feet of water at low tide and 17 feet at high tide was found The total amount removed is 18,000 cubic yards of earth The improvements on river improvements will visit the mouth of the river to-day for the purpose of making a thorough examination of the work The Ocilo will take them down this morning and bring them back to-night. The buoys of two bars found loose, so placed that the steamer can pass in safety Several yet the steamer was no great time getting in.

Petit Jurors.—Drawn for the November term of the Circuit Court, 1866. F E Cowp, Jos. Lowyes, W A Wright, Jacob Smith, C S. Silver Andrew Pullen, Gideon Waddell Pleasant, Thomas Foreman, Isaac Hembree, W L. Durbin, Joe Oppenheimer, Charles Shoemaker, W R. Cooper, Isaac Rowland, C O Clark, N H. Owens, E. K. Egan, John Howell, M Gleason, Moses Hurd, Ellis Rogers, John A. Blanchard, Walter Monk, John R. Price, O M. Barnard, L. Fox, J S. Smith, W. M. Rogers, Martin Gilliham, R S Jewett; of whom the Grand Jury will be drawn on the first day of said term.

Dog Sense.—The following instance of canine sagacity is worthy of record Mr Theodore Tho of Dallas, Polk county, left his home on Monday last and came to Oregon on the boat from Salem His dog, Major by name, on yesterday Mr Thompson was missed by Major meeting him upon the street and manifesting demonstrations of joy and gladness by jumping upon his master some, by some means had left the village of his whereabouts and came directly to the city and found him upon the street. Smart dog.

Escape.—By a late letter received by a merchant in this city we learn that a shooting scrape came off at Victoria a French man by the name of Joe shot ex-Sheriff Bob Lamphire. Lamphire was on the side of the neck, and part of one ear the charge of a double barreled shot gun shoulder balls. Martin was shot through below the left nipple, and is not expected to live is only slightly wounded, he is now at Big Bend in town, and had just come down

Fire Sound.—A little girl was noticed straying about the north side of the city yesterday morning. She was in apparent distress, crying, and asking to be taken to her parents. She was taken charge of by Marshal Hoyt and taken to his office, and kept her until in the afternoon when she was found by her father who was in search of her. The little girl gave her name as Alice Cleveland and that her family were from the Bonad, and were stopping at the Occidental Chase House until the arrival of the steamer, when they will leave for the State of Indiana.

Fire Record.—We learn that the corner room of the building erected by Messrs. Carter, has been let to Mr. L. Gross, as a Drug store The other room will be occupied by Mr. Wm. Currier, our enterprising merchant tailor, and Mr W J Pierson, the agent for Grover & Baker's Sewing Machines The building is fast approaching completion, and when finished will have a splendid appearance

Fire.—The burning stump of a tree yesterday fell down three or four children—members of an emigrant family encamped thereon, who were camped at Love's Ferry, on the Willamette Slough. It struck one little girl aged about seven years, with such violence as to cause death almost instantly. The other children were not materially injured.

The Fair.—Mr Halpruer has laid upon our table some specimens of the genus Murphy They were raised upon a lot at the corner of Eighth and Market streets. The largest weighed 2¼ lbs. the second, 2 lbs., and the third, 1¾ lbs The three weighed 5¾ lbs The potatoes also which weighed 10 lbs

Civil Arrest.—Before Judge Hoffman in Justice Court Whitehurst & Dellinger vs. Philip Hornung—civil action for the recovery of the sum of $140, from Philip Horn ung by Whitehurst & Dellinger The same was made up and the case continued until the 10th proximo for the return of Mr Dellinger, a material witness

Voters' List.—The subscription list for the ballot box is now being circulated, and many names have been found—a large number have already signed The list can be found at Arrigoni's Hotel or the City Hall Go and subscribe.

Sheriff's Sales.—The steamer Senator brought last evening 4 bales wool, 2 packages goods 2,088 sacks flour 7 cases wine, 1 do, 6 boxes apples, 20 sacks feed, 11 rolls leather, 7 pkgs basket-ads, 2 bbls bottles, 7 boxes bottles and one stump puller

Fire Organ.—There was a large crowd at the Circus last night. The Hook and Ladder Co had a bumper turn out enough. Good for the boys—we are glad of your success.

Eastern Papers.—We are under obligations to Barrett & Lundin of late Eastern journals. Among them are the N Y Herald, Harper's Weekly the Round Table The Nation, etc., etc. He has all the latest papers for sale.

McCormick has any number of new papers and magazines. We get our usual bundle last evening Among them is the Atlantic Monthly for October, a capital number

What Experienced Mill Men think of the Portable Steam Saw Mills built by the Oregon Iron Works:

PORTLAND Oct 18th 1866

TO THE OREGON IRON WORKS

Gentlemen—The Portable Steam Saw Mill which we purchased of you last spring for Fred Greville Esq has been in operation during the past season and has more than met our expectations in its performance With three men we turn out from three to four thousand feet and with five men, five thousand feet per day of ten hours, and we take pleasure in recommending these mills as the most SUBSTANTIAL, DESIRABLE AND PERFECT MILLS IN USE, and especially adapted to the wants of this country on account of their compact form ease of transportation and the facility with which they can be set up and put in operation. Although subjected to the most severe tests, no repairs have been required

"I take pleasure in recommending the Mexican Mustang Liniment as a valuable and indispensable article for Sprains Sores, Scratches or Galls on Horses. Our mules have used it for Burns Bruises, Sores, Rheumatism, &c. and all say it acts like magic. J W HEWILL,
Foreman American, Wells, Fargo and Harnden's Express

"The sprain of my daughter's ankle, occasioned while skating last winter was entirely cured in one week after she commenced using your celebrated Mustang Liniment Gloucester, Mass Aug 1, 1865 ED. EERLY"

It is an admitted fact that the Mexican Mustang Liniment performs more cures in shorter time, on man and beast, than any article ever discovered Families, livery men and planters should always have it on hand Quick and sure it certainly is A genuine is wrapped in steel-plate engravings, bearing U S Stamp of DEMAS BARNES & Co over the top.

An effort has been made to counterfeit it with a cheap stone-plate label. Look closely!

Lyon's Katharion.
It is a most delightful Hair Dressing
It eradicates scurf and dandruff
It keeps the head cool and clean

Spring and Autumn.

Ev'ry season hath its pleasures!
Spring may boast her dow'ry prime,
Yet the vineyard's ruby treasures
Brighten Autumn's sob'er time.
So life's year begins and closes;
Days, though short'ning, still can shine;
When the spring locked coy and shy,
Yet herself in Autumn sought me
When the flowers were all gone by.
Ah, too late!—she found her lover
Calm and free beneath his vine;
Drinking to the Springtime's flower
In his best autumnal wine.
Thus may we, as years are flying
To their flight our pleasures suit,
Nor regret the blossoms dying,
While we still may taste the fruit.
Oh, while days like this are gone,
Where's the fly that dares repine!
Spring may take our loves and flowers,
So Autumn leaves us friends and wine.

Our Late Senatorial Contest.

The following sketch of the late contest in this State for Senator, is taken from the Oregon correspondence of the S. F. Bulletin. Though somewhat long, it will repay perusal. It begins with a sketch of the Senator elect:

The new Senator was born in Massachusetts, but removed at an early age to Washington county, New York. He was bred a merchant in New York city. At an early year he came to this coast to seek his fortune, and in February, 1851, he settled in Portland and commenced business as a merchant. He still maintains a wholesale house here, and has steadily prospered from that day to this. Last spring he took the mail contract between Lincoln, California and Portland, Oregon, and is now carrying on that great enterprise more successfully than it was ever done. He is still on the younger side of forty—probably thirty eight years of age. His religious associations are with the Presbyterians. He has luck as well as merit. I have heard it said, by one who knows, that for ten or fifteen years, he has had goods constantly on the way here, from New York via Cape Horn, and that in all that time, he never once insured, and never lost a package by any casualty. Mr. Corbett is an active, industrious man of good habits and pure life, benevolent, and of excellent repute among his neighbors. He has the good wishes and sympathy of all who know him, and whatever good fortune may befall him, few will be found to carry him or carp at it.

At Washington I am certain he will be able to do much to advance all the material interests and business of this State and its people, so far as the same depends upon or are affected by the action of Congress and the Departments. His personal affinities and relations with society and men are such, that we may safely presume, in the distribution of Federal patronage in this State, his influence will be steadily given for men of good character and conduct in the community. Roughs, adventurers and fancy men are not within the range of his acquaintance or the current of his sympathies, and unless the atmosphere of Washington or the necessities of politics shall demoralize him, such people are not likely to be benefitted by his election to the Senate. The new Senator is an original Republican, and although never in office or politics as a pursuit, yet he has always been active in the councils of the party, and liberal with his time and means to advance its prospects and purposes. But whilst leading the life of a business man, and an industrious one, I think that he has had more political ambition than he generally had credit for. I remember sitting in a school meeting with him some five years ago, when we differed upon some question of taxation—he taking the side of the most liberal maintenance of public schools. From the views which he then expressed, and the way in which he expressed them, he struck me at once as having a large popular element in his composition. On the way home I remarked to a friend, "Corbett will be a candidate for the Senate if he lives." I did not then think, nor do I now, that he was purposely and knowingly seeking place or public favor; but I thought I saw on a small scale, what has since been made manifest on a larger one—that nature had so mixed the elements in him that he could not escape the public eye, and that the popular impulses and his own instincts would sooner or later so work together as to elevate him to power and place.

As you may infer from his speech, [Reference is made to his late speech in this city.—Ed. Oregonian.] he is a Republican without shade or alloy. But his natural gravity and benignity, together with his mercantile education and experience, tempers and modifies his conduct. He may be said to be a Radical in thought and a Conservative in action, a man of strong convictions, but temperate and moderate speech and conduct. To illustrate: From the organization of the Republican party in Oregon, in 1859, up to the time of the organization of the Union party, in 1862, Corbett was Chairman of the State Central Committee of the former. The leaders of the Douglas party in their fight against Lane and Breckinridge Democracy, which resulted in the election of Nesmith and Baker to the Senate, and Lincoln's carrying the State, had backed themselves and their party pretty well into the Republican camp. The outbreak of the war left them no other place to go, and they saw it. But they did not relish the prospects of going into the Republican ranks as individual recruits, but preferred an alliance between themselves and the Republicans, as independent bodies, to form a new party, to be called the Union party. The Republican leaders were generally adverse to this proposal, particularly as they were certain of two-thirds of the Douglas rank and file anyhow, which they preferred without the leaders. It so happened that the determination of the question finally devolved on Corbett, and he yielded to the entreaties of the Douglas leaders, and signed the joint call for the Eugene Convention, which led to the formation of the Union party. I mention this circumstance, not for the purpose of questioning the political wisdom of the course pursued, but as an illustration of Mr. Corbett's temper in matters. Whether, for the Republicans, it was wise or unwise, is a disputed question. A majority of the rank and file of the Douglas party have remained with the Union party and become practically Republicans, but a majority of the leaders, (and they were numerous as well as smart,) upon one occasion or another, have kicked over the traces, or fallen out of the ranks and gone back to the Democratic party.

Few men, I suppose, were ever elected to the Senate of the United States with as little direct exertion or connivance on their part to that end, as Mr. Corbett. By this I do not mean to be understood that he was utterly passive or indifferent to what was going on around him. But still it may be fairly said that this greatness was thrust upon him. May he wear it worthily and well.

THE FAILURE TO ELECTORIZE, GIBBS.

Having paid my respects to the Senator elect, permit me to add a paragraph or two about some not elected. The rising sun should not fill all of our horizon. As the world goes—Oregon included—a man may be beaten for the Senate who deserved to win.

'Tis true, 'tis pity,
And pity 'tis 'tis true.

Gov. Gibbs worked hard for the success of the Union party, and a seat in the Senate. He and Mr. Mitchell have shaken the bush, but another has caught the bird. Another illustration of the truth of the Psalmist: "Put not your trust in Princes"—which hereafter should be rendered in all American editions of the royal bard, "Put not your trust in primaries." He was the favorite of the substantial, earnest people of the Union party and the nominee of the Union caucus, fairly and deliberately made. Although always within two votes of an election, the party was compelled to withdraw him, even while it had a nominal majority of seven in joint convention. This was done principally at the dictation of two members from this county, who were willing to support Corbett, but no other Union man, so far as appears. The grounds of their opposition to Gibbs is variously conjectured, but they could not have been political, because, so far as any one knows or the country understands, there is no difference in this respect between the two men. But this being the case, it is supposed that the party acted wisely in yielding to the necessities of the situation and electing Mr. Corbett, rather than to throw away the opportunity of electing a Republican Senator. Yet it is easy to see that no party can long endure such a mass of action or party discipline. To the end, unless those men who fairly earn the honors within the gift of a party receive them, the party will have no honors to bestow. Unless all members of a party are to be held bound to support a worthy nomination fairly made, the party is at the mercy of a minority, however factious or unscrupulous. Such an organization is a rope of sand, a mere oobweb, with which the unscrupulous bind the hands of honest men, while they are left at liberty to forage for themselves where they will. A political party is a merely human institution, and must live and work by human means. The honors and emoluments within its gift the principal of these, and so long as human nature is what it is, unless it bestows them upon those, being otherwise worthy, who bear the heat of the day and the brunt of the battle, it ought not to expect to command their services, and will be mistaken if it does. I admit that this doctrine has been abused, and always will be liable to abuse. If men were so constituted as to be above such considerations, to be wholly indifferent to honors and rewards, it would be better for the country. But this is not so, and within certain reasonable limitations, including always equal fitness and worth, a party to be successful, must bestow its honors upon those who have done its labor and borne its reproach. Although I think that a majority acted wisely under the circumstances, in giving up their nominee and electing Mr. Corbett, yet it ought not to permit itself to be placed in a situation where it must submit to the caprice and dictation of a small minority, or do worse. To avoid this dilemma in the future, it must elect no man to the Assembly who is not bound to go into caucus, and support its nominee, if fairly made. Either this, of disband, and give all men a chance to dicker and trade alike, and let "the longest pole knock the persimmons."

WHY NESMITH WAS NOT ELECTED.

And so it is determined, as I predicted, that Nesmith is not to return to the Senate. And this result has happened, notwithstanding he had many personal friends of influence, within and without the State, who earnestly desired and labored for his re-election. Leading men in the regular army who were grateful to him for his uniform and effectual support of that institution in the State, and who desired to maintain a friend at court—prominent contractors, corporations by land and sea, and business men generally, who had been benefitted and sidedby his personal influence and exertions in their behalf, advocated his claims whenever opportunity afforded or occasion served. But it was all of no avail. The great people have little sympathy with these special interests, and are always disposed to leave those who serve them, to their own reward. The political condition of the country and the political record and sympathies of the candidates, were the first considerations that entered into the election of Senator. The people are sharply and distinctly divided between the Unionists or Republicans and the Democrats. Individuals may dream of third parties, founded upon the policy of the President, the utterances of the Philadelphia Convention, or any other narrow isthmus between these two great oceans of popular sentiment and passion; but it is all a dream—at least in this State. The Republicans support the policy of Congress, as unanimously and positively as ever any important measure is supported by any party. On the other hand, the Democrats are opposed to that policy root and branch. However platform devices may represent them, in their hearts they believe that the North provoked the war and is morally responsible for it. That the war being a foray by the North against the South, success did not make it right, and that therefore the North gained nothing and the South lost nothing by it, of either political right or power. As for the President and Mr. Seward, they have no confidence in either of them personally or in their policy. In this state of things, it was not possible for Mr. Nesmith to be returned to the Senate by any fair means, and neither he or any friend of his country would desire it otherwise. The distinctively Democratic press of the State has denounced him in unmeasured terms, and deprecated his election as a political calamity. The exception, while advocating his election as a matter of policy, plainly admitted that he was not entitled to Democratic support. The party generally adopted the conclusion of fact and spurned the policy. They disliked him politically for his support of the war, and they cherished against him a personal grudge for his alliance with the Republicans in 1860, which sent him to the Senate, and resulted in the overthrow of the Democracy in Oregon. Another circumstance was not without weight. All through the State there was more or less clamor against him, from persons of all shades of politics, who, in times gone by and near at hand, had felt the sharp edge of Nesmith's wit or been made the victims of his broad jokes. "Wit ill handled is a dangerous weapon"—particularly when the subjects of it are voters.

Among the Unionists, Nesmith had many personal friends, including most of the Federal officers in the State. Apart from politics and present political considerations, many of them would have preferred him to any other named man, and but few would have interposed any serious effort or objection against his success. As it was, some of them allowed their personal attachment to the man to overcome or neutralize their political convictions, and either publicly or privately advocated his election, or said or done nothing to prevent it. But with the large majority of them the case was otherwise. They may have regretted that it was so, but they had no alternative. They were in favor of supporting the authority and power of Congress to provide for the reconstruction of the late Confederate States, and of the adoption of the amendment to the National Constitution; to promote or permit the election of Nesmith was to give up their cherished convictions upon fundamental questions at an important crisis, and this they could not do for mere personal considerations. The truth is, Nesmith was not intended for a party captain in a Democratic Government. Instinctively, he is disposed to question the divine right of the masses to guide and direct their leaders in all things. At times, he is liable to forget the Democratic theory of politics—that wisdom comes from below—and think for himself. And if this were otherwise—he is not so constituted as to readily know or fatuitively divine the popular wish or proclivity. Eminently social, within a somewhat limited worldly circle, where wit and worldly shrewdness are apt to abound, his impulses and convictions as to the merits and tendencies of public measures and the people, are limited and colored by these particular conditions. Personal friendship and social affinity for those who constitute his circle of companions, and whose voices are ever within the range of his ear, are the media through which he sees the world, and furnish the motives which govern his conduct in the support of measures and men. He went to the Senate an admirer of Andy Johnson, and I make no doubt that his personal sympathy for him has helped him to the conclusion that "my policy" deserved his support. His personal associates have been chiefly among those who look to the Commander-in-Chief of the army as the head of the Government and the exponent of duty, and through them he has seen the situation and esteemed the public sentiment.

Yet, after all, his career has been a successful one. Coming to this country in 1843, a wild, witty youth of 20 summers or thereabouts, with but a limited education, without fortune, friends, pursuit, or profession, save a limited and pickedup knowledge of the "carpenter's craft," he has acquired a comfortable competence, made his mark upon the annals of the State, and given color and direction to the affairs of the nation in the Senate during the most momentous period of history. During his six years in the Senate no Oregonian has gone to Washington without feeling a sort of proud consciousness that his Senator was a man among men, and that it was something worth while to be known as one of "Old Nes's" constituents. He has great administrative capacity, which early habits of methodical application would have better developed, but probably at the expense of the distinct and native flavor of his character. I am quite sure he would make a good General. The bent of his life has been towards the military. If he would accept of it rather than return to his "Sabian field" on the sweet flowing Rogue, the President ought to make him a General in the regular army.

ON THE WAY TO PITTSBURG.—Generals Butler, Geary, Sprague, Simon Cameron, and a number of New England and New Jersey delegates, arrived at Huntingdon, Pa., September 24th. A crowd at the depot cheered and shouted for General Butler. He appeared, and as the people insisted on a speech, he said: "My friends, I am much obliged for your courteous and kind reception. I am always glad to see men of sound principles. [Voice—"That's what's the matter with us," and laughter.] I have not a spare copy of the Constitution, nor a spare flag to leave with you [laughter]; but I know you have both, and know how to take care of both. [Applause, and cries of "That's good."] I can therefore only give you my sincere thanks." [Cheers.]

General Geary was next called and said: "In swinging round the circle he felt it proper to thank Andrew Johnson for the benefit he had done the cause in general and the cause of the speaker by his speeches." [Laughter and cheers.]

At Tyrone the crowd cheered for our next President—Butler, and the next Governor—Geary.

At Altoona, Butler and Geary were called out after supper. General Butler said: "Gentlemen, as this is a friendly greeting, I know you don't expect me to make a speech. Talking is dangerous. There has been a man going round the country making speeches, and he has killed himself by it. [Cheers.] I don't want to do that, and so good night." Three cheers were given for the Yankee General.

At Pittsburg there was a great crowd assembled at the depot.

COLLOQUIAL TELEGRAPHY ACROSS THE CONTINENT.—The Chicago Republican of September 14th says:

The wires worked well last night across the continent, and San Francisco wanted to shake hands with Gaspe Bay, or, as the phrase is, "get him." So Buffalo passed the word, and from "away Down East" came the answer and this conversation:

BANGOR (Me.), September 13—11:35 P. M.—Who calls? What time have you got?

SAN FRANCISCO, September 13.—Time, 8:05. Can't you give us London?

BANGOR—11:39 P. M.—Guess not to-night.

BOSTON, September 13—11:40 P. M.—How about Major Pope?

SAN FRANCISCO, September 13.—Guess he's gone home.

Several minutes of mixed rappings along the wires, and Buffalo reported Bangor thought he was being fooled, and being a strict Yankee, wasn't to be caught again. Then Boston, who seems not till now to have seriously comprehended the situation, came in with a direct application to San Francisco for a weather report, and an item fresh from the Pacific, which was apt responded to; and after New York and San Francisco, who are used to it, had had a little talk, the operators along the route resumed business. The joke on Bangor is, that a San Francisco circuit had never before been opened up to him, and he was not prepared to believe it. The atmospheric condition was accidental, and, properly seized, with attentive "adjustments" along the line, we might have had Gaspe Bay and Puget Sound talking together. it will be done yet.

SOMETHING NEW!
THE NEW LIGHT!
DANFORD'S
Atmospheric Coal Oil Gas Lamp!

ARTIFICIAL LIGHT OF SOME SORT IS A UNIversal necessity. A Safe, Cheap and Brilliant one is a luxury—a luxury only enjoyed here-to-fore by those who live in large cities where Gas is used. Years of study and much capital have been exhausted in experiments to produce a lamp wherein the ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil could be used without a chimney, and without unpleasant odor while in use. That fruitful source of expense, trouble and annoyance, the chimney, is in DANFORD'S COAL OIL GAS LAMP avoided; it is the most perfect Lamp and will entirely supersede all other Coal Oil Lamps; it is the cheapest artificial light that can be used, yielding the light of an ordinary six feet Gas burner for less than 5½ cent per hour, or double the quantity of light of an ordinary Chimney Lamp, for one third the cost. It will burn when turned down to a taper-light, ten hours for a cent, is free from smoke, can be carried from room to room and the wind will not blow it out. These LAMPS will be on exhibition and for sale at the Music and Art Gallery of Shanahan & Dufrene, corner of Morrison and First streets.

CITY OF PARIS STORE!
making less than two-fifths of the real amount said Mayer was to pay. He had rented the building at very advantageous rates, and even were he now to comply with his contract, and pay in Coin, would be getting the best bargain in the city. I make this statement, to show the public what kind of a man he must be to take such undue advantages at the times to convert a few dollars to himself by LEGAL SWINDLING. The public can readily see how much it costs to have such tenants in such costly buildings as the can rerferred to above.
